A letter from Laura's 'Pilates' Wellness Day'

Thank you so much to the lovely people of North Queensferry, and beyond, for coming along and supporting our Wellness Day on the 25th January, in aid of Parkinson's UK. Together, we raised an incredible £3278!

The day was filled with activities promoting health and well-being. Fantastic teachers donated their time delivering brilliant sessions in: Pilates, Yoga, Safe Fall and Parkinson's Box-Fit. There was even something for the kids, our Storytime Pilates of 'Jack and the Beanstalk'.

Exercise plays a crucial role in managing the symptoms of Parkinson's, slowing progression and improving overall quality of life, so we felt this would be a great way of raising awareness in the community.

Mark Coxe, a dedicated Parkinson's UK volunteer, was on hand all day speaking to lots of people- providing invaluable information about local support groups and resources.

My lovely mum and kids were on Café and raffle duty, which alone brought in £461! The raffle featured fantastic prizes generously donated by local businesses, including Rankin's Cafe, Juiceology, Chocolate Tree, Japanese Gardens at Cowden, Zen Kidz, The Plant Market, and Shakti UK. The raffle was a huge success, further boosting our fundraising efforts and showing the incredible generosity of the community.

The overwhelming support from everyone involved made this event a resounding success. Not only did we raise vital funds for Parkinson's UK, but we also fostered awareness and had fun in the process. A huge thank you to all the volunteers, participants, my family & friends, and donors who contributed—your kindness and generosity is truly appreciated!

Thank you to everyone for your support!

North Queensferry Coastal Rowing Club

North Queensferry Coastal Rowing Club is a small community spirited club which is lucky to have two St Ayles Skiffs and a Wemyss skiff at its disposal.

How did the Club begin?

Gordon Scobie, the chair of North Queensferry Boat Club in 2012, successfully applied for an "Awards for All" grant, to build a skiff in order to revive the traditional rowing race between North and South Queensferry.

North Queensferry Coastal Rowing Club was formed with an agreement with the North Queensferry Boat Club for exclusive use and responsibility for the skiffs.

'St Margaret's Hope' was built from a kit by our talented retired joiner, Frank Wood, with help from a dedicated band of new club helpers. It was launched on 6th May 2012.

The club members decided to name the skiff 'St Margaret's Hope' to acknowledge the past, present, and future significance of the area in which the skiff will be rowed.

St Margaret's Hope is a small area of land very close to where the skiff is launched. Historically, Malcolm III of Scotland rescued Margaret of Scotland and her family in this area when her boat got into difficulty.

Our second St Ayles skiff,: 'Ferry Sonnet', was built in a similar fashion and launched in May 2013.

The members chose this name in recognition of Alan Turing's famous paper about Artificial intelligence in which one of the challenges Imagined in the Turing test is:-

'please write me a sonnet on the subject of the Forth Bridge'.

The Wemyss skiff, named, 'The Wee Boat', is owned by a couple of members/former member. It was also built by Frank Wood . The owners kindly allow anyone in the club access to the skiff, which members do at every opportunity.

The 'Wee Boat' was launched in 2016 and gives us the flexibility to get out on the water if only a couple of rowers are available. It presents the opportunity to row using a slightly different skill set.

All members appreciate how lucky they are able to engage in such a wonderful activity and how important this is to them.

The physical benefit from rowing is clear for all to see, building strength and stamina improving breathing and circulation, developing and toning muscles.

But the effects on our mental health and overall wellbeing are far greater.

In addition, the community spirit and the social aspect is invaluable.

When we go out on calm waters, our thoughts drift, we relax and we take in the scenery around us -changing skies, moody clouds, sunrays, looming rain, whirlpools, winds.

However, we never forget the power and the danger that our waters and mother nature can pose. When the wind and water make the row 'exhilarating', we use our strength, determination and skill to work together as a team.

The Art of Wellbeing

'Art washes away from the soul the dust of everyday life.' Pablo Picasso.

In 2019, the World Health Organisation reviewed evidence from over 3000 studies looking at the relationship between the arts and wellbeing. It concluded that engaging with art, either as the audience or as the person creating it, can help in the prevention and management of illness across our lifetime.

By interacting with art, we stimulate thoughts, senses, emotions and memories. When doing so, there is a lowering of stress hormones such as cortisol, slowing your heart and breathing rates, and relaxing your nervous system. Levels of 'feel good' chemicals - endorphins and dopamine - increase. Even if you go to an art gallery alone, you'll inevitably find yourself in the company of other people and your mind will register a social connection. Going to museums or galleries every few months in older age has been associated with slower rate of cognitive decline and a lower risk of developing dementia. In people of all ages, engaging in art activities can help to reduce depression and anxiety.

That sounds great: how do I get a prescription? In some parts of Europe a doctor can prescribe 'museotherapy'. Whilst sadly we don't have this in Scotland, there are many ways to experience art for little or no money.

Fife and Edinburgh are rich with museums and galleries offering free exhibitions. National Galleries Scotland have resources for people with visual impairment, hearing impairment, specific sensory needs, young children/families and dementia-friendly resources.

If you're attending the Queen Margaret Hospital, take a little time to visit the Community Art Gallery (ground floor corridor connecting Phase1 & Phase2).

To experience art outdoors, explore the Fife Art Trails, or contemplate the sculptures in the grounds of the Edinburgh Modern Art Gallery.

much more frequent service covering NQ, Ferrytoll and Inverkeithing. The ideas behind that include:-

- For many with access to a car, the need to plan journeys round the schedules in and out of the village makes taking the car too tempting. A more frequent local service would lessen the need to leave or return at specific times
- For a lot of journeys using the existing services, switching at Ferrytoll to a more direct bus may well be quicker and more attractive.

Against that is the need to avoid negative unintended consequences, hence the consultation. Nothing is decided yet so, if this sort of change would have an adverse effect on you, please be sure to let the Council know. Keep an eye out for the consultation, which will probably run from mid-May into July. There should be lots of ways to interact, on paper or via:- https://haveyoursay.fife.gov.uk/.

In the meantime, you can email cllr.dave.dempsey@fife.gov.uk if you've any questions.

Forthview Church

It has been good to see the sunshine at long last and it is also a time of change for the Church in North Queensferry. By the time you read this, the Ministry Team in Forthview Parish will be complete and the Rev. Elane Sassenberg will have joined the Team with particular responsibility for the churches in North Queensferry and Inverkeithing. Elane, originally from South Africa, has moved to Fife from Kinnoull Parish Church in Perth and the congregation looks forward to getting to know her and her family. You are also very welcome to join us at 10am on Sunday mornings and get to know Elane too. It is hoped you felt welcome attending the services held throughout Forthview Parish during Holy Week or those on Easter Sunday.The village Coffee Mornings, held fortnightly in the Church on Wednesdays at 10.30am, continue to thrive raising funds for national charities and local causes (e.g. all March donations went to NQ Mother and Toddlers). On Wednesday 30 April, there will be a specially themed coffee morning to mark the upcoming VE Day celebrations when all donations will go to Christian Aid ,also celebrating its 80th Anniversary. In 1945, British and Irish churches founded an organisation to raise funds for all refugees following World War II and Christian Aid has continued for 80 years, providing help and hope, worldwide, in poorer communities. Later in the summer, we shall also mark VJ Day at the Village Coffee Morning on Wednesday, 20 August.

Supporting biodiversity in our local area: Hedgehogs

Hedgehogs are an iconic British wildlife species, with appealing faces and mannerisms which make them popular with young and old alike. Unfortunately, hedgehogs are in decline in Britain and are now listed as 'Vulnerable' on Britain's red list of mammals. According to the latest State of Britain's hedgehogs report, numbers of hedgehogs have fallen by up to 30% in urban areas and 50% in rural areas since the Millennium. There is no single cause for the decline, although habitat loss is probably the largest contributor. Making sure hedgehogs can travel between gardens by leaving small (13cm x 13cm) holes in fences can help them find new food sources - they love to eat the slugs in our gardens. If you want to supplement their diet you can put out cat food, but definitely not milk, as they are lactose intolerant! Hedgehogs have come out of their winter hibernation now and you may see them out roaming the Ferry at night, as they are a nocturnal species. If you see one out during the day they may be ill or injured and that is when the Forth Hedgehog Hospital may be of help. If you would like to hear about what the Forth Hedgehog Hospital does, along with more detailed facts about hedgehogs and how we can help them thrive then come along to a talk being organised by NQ Climate Action Network at the NQ Community Centre on Wednesday14th May at 7pm. Everyone is welcome!

Brock Street Play Park Refurbishment---Update

We have now reached the target of £4,000.00 on our 'Just Giving' page, so many thanks to all who made a contribution.

The page is now closed but if anyone wishes to make a final donation, then this can be done through the North Queensferry (NQ) Community Complex by contacting a member of staff.

The final figure was actually £4,010.00 and this will be added to the rest of the funding.

The playpark layout has been altered slightly to avoid any possible safety issues with overhead cables, but there is no change to the actual equipment. Just as a reminder, the equipment was designed and chosen by the pupils of NQ Primary School with the theme of 'Underwater.'

The intention is to have a copy of the final layout on display in the school and at the Community Centre.

The Tender process is now complete and procurement of the equipment will take some 8-10 weeks.

Actual work on site will depend on the workload of the successful installation contractor, but hopefully, the refurbished park will be open later this year. This has been a long journey, but the end is now in sight!!

Many thanks to the pupils (of various years!) from NQ Primary School for their contributions and the Head Teacher (for her patience and understanding!).

North Queensferry Walking/ Strolling Group May—August 2025

Beach Cleans...can you help?

Last December's Deep Sea World (DSW) beach clean at East Bay collected 7kg of rubbish, while the clean in March of this year at South Bay collected 13kg. Waste collected included a croc shoe, tea bags, plasters and plastic rope.

The next DSW beach clean at Cults Ness will not only be joined by staff and villagers but also by some MOWI employees ('Marine Harvest':: the Norwegian Seafood Company who have a facility in Rosyth).

DSW are keen to try out cleans at other locations and are open to feedback. If anyone is aware of a particular location requiring attention even if a little further afield, please contact Deep Sea World.

Planned beach cleans:-

Sunday June 1– Cult's Ness at 10.30am
Sunday August 31– Port Laing

Deep Sea World always announce their beach cleans on social media prior to the event .

Community Tree Planting

Around 30 villagers, young and old, came together to plant approximately 480 trees in the long grass west of the community centre at the end of March. The planting day was a joint enterprise between the NQ Community Complex, NQ Climate Action Network, The Fife Coast and Countryside Trust and the Akin Oak project.

We had initially sourced around 120 trees from the Woodland Trust and local people. Rebecca Logsdon from The Fife Coast and Countryside Trust brought hundreds of additional trees for open planting and hedging and Colin Andrews, local artist, brought one of his oak trees to plant as a central focus for the new woodland area.

Colin's website says "Akin is a long-term, large scale, participatory, public artwork in which oak trees are being planted across Fife, in Scotland, to create a 'future forest'. The project began in 2013 and is intended to be realised and continued many years into our shared future. As well as the environmental and well-being implications of creating a forest of the future, the intention of Akin is to engage the residents and communities of Fife to create a collective symbol of empowerment, commitment, and sustainability through individual acts of nurture, stewardship, and reflection."

Rebecca also brought tools, gloves and gave us some basic training in tree planting.
We managed to plant up the area we had permission for in around 2 ½ hours, which was fortunate as it had just started to rain!

Tree Planters' have already been back to prop-up some of the sapling after a ferocious wind. the night after planting and watered the trees due to the unusual dry spell.

Next steps will include weeding and mulching around the trees, and perhaps some more watering if necessary. So, there is some more work to be done looking after the trees and hedging. In the future we also hope to plant an orchard area opposite the community centre (after the play park renovation is finished) so local people can literally enjoy the fruits of their labours!

In the meantime, you may be interested in the Fife Tree Warden Scheme. Fife Coast and Countryside Trust and Climate Action Fife-are inviting anyone interested in trees to get involved in Fife Tree Warden scheme. Tree Wardens are local tree champions who plant, look after and stand up for the trees in their patch. The scheme is open to anyone. No prior training or experience in tree management are needed – just a love of trees and a few hours to spare. Interested to find out more? Please contact the Community Engagement Manager (Fife Climate Forest) Rebecca.Logsdon@fifecountryside.co.uk

Parent Council Plant Sale Please come along and support the Parent Council Plant Sale at Mount Hooly Crescent. Last year the Plant Sale made £460.25, thanks to all who attended or donated. The money made will go towards the school's P6 Munro Challenge as well as needed equipment or enrichment activities for the school..

Bring along plants to sell: all types of plants welcome - strawberry and tomato plants, large plants, small plants, seedlings Any crop (e.g. rhubarb) would a welcome sale item especially for bakers or jam makers. Home baking will be available so even the less green fingered villagers can come along and treat themselves!

Sea Shanty Workshop

‘Take it to the Bridge’ is a North Queensferry singing group which was established two years ago. There are now fifteen members: some with musical experience, some not. The Group meet at the Boatyard, down at the Marina on Wednesday evenings at 6:30pm.

North Queensferry Community Trust

(NQCT) was set up as a charity in 2011 by representatives of the different community groups in NQ to work on projects in order to provide and improve on facilities and services in the village.

The Trust's current major project is to manage NQ Harbour and West Bay for which a 50 year lease was signed in 2015. The Harbour is home to NQ Boat Club and NQ Coastal Rowing Club as well as providing kayak storage for Lothian Sea Kayak Club. There are two community-use workshop spaces in the area at the back called the Harbour Yard.

The Trust also works as an umbrella organisation through which any group of residents who want to make something happen in the village can get together and raise money or run a project without having to set up an entirely new organisation with its own bank account and constitution. This is how Pierhead Playpark Project successfully received grants and donations for the regeneration of the park a few years ago. The Trust is now working in a similar way to support the work of NQ Climate Action Network. It also holds the funds for the Local Action Plan and supports the work of the Albert Community Group.

You can find out more details at www.nqcommunitytrust.org.uk or you can email nq.community.trust@gmail.com

North Queensferry Community Trust AGM

Please come along to find out more about the work of the Trust.

Albert Hotel - Buyout Application Refusal Appealed

Almost 18 months after submitting its application for a buyout of the Albert Hotel North Queensferry Community Trust (NQCT) heard late in March that its application had been refused.

NQCT had applied as a Community Body under the Land Reform Act 2016, nominating the Albert Community Group as its partner to purchase and run the Albert. Scottish Ministers said they agreed that the community goals for the buyout met the requirements of the legislation but the Albert Community Group's business plan wasn't viable in their opinion.

Within days NQCT and the Albert Community Group both decided they wanted to appeal the refusal. They believe there are procedural and substantive errors both in the process and the decision itself.

Iain Mitchell, NQCT's chair, told the Daily Record: "We are going to exercise our right to take an Appeal to the Sheriff. The fight to save the Albert continues."

NQCT lodged its appeal on 11th April 2025

Heating Our Homes and Reducing Our Bills

We know that we have to stop burning oil and gas for the sake of the climate and the planet. That means finding ways to heat our homes using green energy sources. If that sounds like a daunting prospect, help is at hand.

North Queensferry Climate Action Network are hosting a presentation by Home Energy Scotland at 7 pm, April 30th , at the Community Centre. Home Energy Scotland (HES) advise on ways to make homes warmer, and ways to reduce energy bills, for example by installing solar panels, batteries and heat-pumps. They also bring up-to-date information about government grants and sources of funding available to help with installation costs.

Home Energy Scotland is funded by the Scottish Government and managed by the Energy Saving Trust. They know about the technology, and the costs (which are generally a lot less than they were five or ten years ago). And they know about the payback that solar panels and batteries can earn in terms of reduced electricity bills.

Each house will have its problems and each of us will have our questions. The HES presenters will want to discuss those questions following their presentation of the information. At the end of the meeting there will be an opportunity to arrange for a follow-up visit by a professional who will check everything about your home. You will then get a detailed report on what you could do, step by step, with approximate costs and savings, to reduce heat loss and to instal a green home heating system.

Together we can learn from each other and talk about the changes that we know we have to make over the coming years.

Heating Our Homes

North Queensferry Climate Action Network continues to organise talks to answer questions people in the Ferry have raised about we can do now and also a bit to help us think about what the future might look like.

One big question is how to keep our homes warm? There are many different ways to help do this- insulation and draft proofing are always good places to start. Later this month (30 April) there is a presentation by the Scottish Government advisory service 'Home Energy Scotland'.

Another question is what happens when we get rid of our gas boilers? A previous meeting had a great talk on heat pumps, as one of the choices to heat our homes. This month the presentation was on another option: 'Heat Networks. So, what is a Heat Network?'

On March12th Hugh Muschamp, a leading figure in Fife Council's work on climate change and a resident in the Ferry, gave a wide-ranging talk to the Climate Action Network on district heat networks.

Most of us, or people we know, have something very like a heat network in our homes. In fact a gas or oil boiler with radiators, and for some a hot water tank, is actually just a small heat network. Now think of something bigger, much bigger. In a district heating network, the hot water that powers the radiators in each building is supplied by a heavily insulated pipe network around the whole district, and the water is heated by large, efficient machines powered by green energy, such as electricity. To help keep a good supply of hot water, there will be heat stores, these are large hot water tanks.

Each building needs only simple equipment to pump the hot water around. This equipment is easier and cheaper to maintain than a gas central heating boiler and should last longer. As many as half of the homes in North Queensferry are not suitable for air-source heat-pumps, so we should be beginning to think about a district heating network. Fife Council is way ahead of us, and there are already heating networks in operation or under construction in Fife and all over Scotland.

Modern heat networks can be really efficient and a good way to heat homes. In countries like Den-mark, a vast number of the buildings are on heat networks.

Did you know we have three large heat networks in Fife? Part of Dunfermline, including the Carnegie Leisure Centre, many homes and the big Tesco's in the centre of the city, are already heated by a heating network. The Council also has a network in the Centre of Glenrothes. The University of St Andrews has a network from Guardbridge to St Andrews. Hugh Muschamp in his talk showed us a map of the area, marked with the extent of a major district heating network which is possible for Dunfermline and Rosyth. www.fife.gov.uk/lhees.

But what about little old North Queensferry! Hugh explained that a large, densely built-up heating network can operate very economically and that will be the early focus. Small satellite heating networks can be developed over time and be linked in at a distance. So, eventually, places like North Queensferry might be connected to bigger networks such as the ones being considered for Dunfermline and Rosyth.

An alternative option might be to set up a small, independent heating system powered either from heat exchange with the water of the Firth of Forth, or with the somewhat warmer water that flows into the sewage treatment system.

What does it mean for us in North Queensferry? We can be encouraged that Fife Council has already made great progress, and district heating networks are becoming a reality. And we can learn more and get prepared, supporting the Council's progress, and pressing for a North Queensferry solution.

Floral Enhancement

After a late start the Floral Enhancement Group are now meeting every Tuesday for the summer.

This year, the aim is to improve the Brae where the plants have died and the soil has washed away. The aim is to plant pots with flowers to bring some colour to the Brae this summer.
